Workshop on Artificial Intelligence, Language, and Cognition
Dartmouth College, Hanover, NH, August 13-14, 2024

Tuesday August 13	Location: Rocky 1930 Room in Silsby Hall
10:00 am – 10:15	Welcome (Phillips, Plunkett, Hansen)
10:15 am – 11:15	Alina Dracheva (Dartmouth College PBS) and Jonathan Phillips (Dartmouth College Cognitive Science), "Sequential option generation in humans and LLMs"
11:30 am – 12:30pm	Thomas Icard (Stanford – Philosophy/Computer Science)
12:30 pm – 2:00	lunch break
2:00 pm – 3:00	Lio Wong (MIT - BCS), ""From Words to Worlds: Bridging Language and Thought"
3:15 pm – 4:15	David Plunkett (Dartmouth - Philosophy), "Superintelligent AI and the Foundations of Ethics" (co-auhtored with Tristram McPherson, OSU Philosophy)
4:30 pm – 5:30	Arc Kocurek (Cornell - Philosophy), "Counterpossibles, Functional Decision Theory, and Artificial Agents"
Wednesday August 14	Location: Zimmerman Lounge in Blunt Hall
10:00 am – 11:00	Rachel Rudolph (UC San Diego - Philosophy)
11:30 am – 12:30pm	Nat Hansen (University of Reading – Philosophy) (with Jumbly Grindrod and J.D. Porter), "Distributional Semantics, Holism, and the Instability of Meaning"
12:30 pm – 2:00	lunch break
2:00 pm – 3:00	Justin Khoo (MIT - Philosophy), "The Value of Algorithmic Fictions"
3:15 pm – 4:15	Roman Feiman (Brown University - CLPS) "Language models implement conceptual atomism"

Co-organized by Jonathan Phillips (Dartmouth), David Plunkett (Dartmouth), and Nat Hansen (Reading). Generously supported by Neukom Institute for Computational Science, Program in Cognitive Science, and Department of Philosophy.